Projects not presented here include : work completed for non-governmental organizations, high-tech companies and private start-ups.

In the winter of 2004 in the city of Montreal, Spont was written on paper as a solution for businesses that understand the benefit of forward-thinking design. The creative agency aimed, and still aims, at offering the expertise of young talent that since designed for the web, seeing it evolve and fragment to what we see today. Today, the web gives us access to the world, and the world continues to evolve around it.

Applications and websites are on the computer screens and devices of all your clients. Understanding the digital adaptation that industries are going through is what makes us good at what we do. Think about how profitable an organization can be if paperwork is translated into an easy to use application that stores data and provides insightful analytics. Simple.

Our mission is to promote the benefits of strategic [web] design in the organized environment.
